

A meeting of the student research club "Innovations in IT and AI" was held at the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science.

The topic of "AI-based robot design" was discussed, and students were shown the application of AI technologies in robotics. Participants learned the basic methods of creating a robot model and completed short practical assignments.

